

Home study review hours

The Professional Training Programme asks for a number of home study hours in the form of case studies and projects, for anyone wishing to attain a professional level qualification in Educational Kinesiology.

The maximum hours that Instructors may spend on reviewing your home or case studies without consulting you are specified by the Educational Kinesiology Trust in the table below. Should the Instructor feel that your home study may require additional mentoring time, they will contact you at the earliest possible moment during the review process and discuss this fully with you.

We recommend that you send your Instructor 2 or 3 case studies initially so that any issues or questions can be ironed out right away before you complete the remainder of your study.

Current recommended review fees range from £30-£35, although some Instructors include case studies/project review in their course price. Please ensure that you clarify the financial arrangements with your Instructor at the time of booking your training.
